Conference Tournament – Tiebreaker Policy

Seeding for the Conference Tournament shall be based on the order of finish in the regular season competition.

I. One Two-Way Tie

A. The regular-season head-to-head competition shall be used to break ties. If A (head to head) fails to break the tie, go to B

B. Compare records against the highest seeded remaining teams (considered one at a time in descending order) ..i.e. vs. #1, #2, #3,#4 etc. If A and B fail to break the tie, go to C.

C. A coin flip will be used to determine the higher seed. This coin flip will be conducted by the Commissioner (or his appointee) in the presence of two witnesses. If the coaches involved are not among the witnesses, they will be on a conference phone call while the toss is taking place.

II. One Multiple-Team Tie (3 or more teams)

A.. The regular-season head-to-head competition shall be used to break the ties. When three or more teams are tied, they shall be viewed as a "group" when comparing head-to-head results. The team with the best record vs. all other teams in the tied "group" gains the advantage. Ties are broken to select the higher seeds first prior to breaking other ties. If two or more teams are still tied with the best record against the original "tied group", those teams advance to tiebreaker step B. After the higher seed(s) of the original "tied group" is/are determined, they are separated from the original "tied group" (i.e. they are seeded and OUT of the equation) and the next higher seed(s) are determined by the remaining tied teams returning to A for their tie-breaker. If there are two remaining tied teams, they would go to the Two Team Tiebreaker policy. If there are three or more remaining tied teams, they would form another "tied group" of their own and go back to A for the Multiple Team Tiebreaker. If A (head to head) fails to break the tie, go to step B

B. The next step in breaking the tie for all or part of the "original tied group" is: Compare records against the highest seeded remaining teams (considered one at a time in descending order) ..i.e. #1, #2, #3,#4 etc. If, when attempting to break the tie by this method, you arrive at another group of tied teams, you consider the records against those tied teams as a collective group. If A and B fail to break the tie, go to.

C. A coin flip will be used to determine the higher seed. This coin flip will be conducted by the Commissioner (or his appointee) in the presence of two witnesses. If the coaches involved are not among the witnesses, they will be on a conference phone call while the toss is taking place. The toss is made until an "odd man" is determined and that team receives the top seed for that group. Then toss a coin to determine the other spots. Once it is determined that a coin toss is necessary to break a group of tied teams, a coin toss will be made to break all ties within that group.

III. More Than One Group of Ties

If there are multiple groups of ties (2 or more groups); attempt must be made to break the ties for the higher seeded groups first using Tie-breaker A & B. Once you begin attempting to break ties within a group, you continue working with that group until you have broken all the ties that can be broken by using A & B. If, when attempting to break the tie by this method, you arrive at another group of tied teams, you consider the records against those tied teams as a collective group.

If it was not possible to break the ties for the higher seeded group using A or B, then go down to the next group of tied teams and attempt to break the ties in that group. If the ties in group two are broken, go back up to the top group and attempt again to break those ties using A & B. If it was not possible to break the ties in group two, then go down to the next tied group to see if those ties can be broken using A & B.

If the ties in group three are broken, go all the way back to the top and start again trying to break the Group One ties using A & B.

i.e. Always work from the Top down after you break any group of ties.

The coin flip is "The Last Resort" after all attempts to break ties using A & B have been exhausted. It is our objective to break ties, when possible, by considering the competition of the regular season.

###Within four hours after the last regular season conference game is concluded, the Conference SID will be responsible for emailing the tournament seeding to all conference coaches.-- using the conference tiebreaker if applicable. The SID shall ask for an return email approval/confirmation of correctness from each coach. If any coach disagrees with the way the tiebreaker was interpreted, he shall immediately contact the Oversight committee and they will make the final decision for the tournament seeding. All this should take place as expeditiously as possible on the night of the last conference game, to allow time to prepare for the Conference Tournament.
